Standoff

An unexplained assault led to a police standoff and evacuation of local residents on Michigan Boulevard on Thursday.

According to Lieutenant Tod Sockman, officers responded to the report of an assault in progress on the 2200-block of Michigan at about 2:50 p.m. They found a 33-year old woman with injuries to her face and upper body, and believe she had been walking with her two children on the street when a male resident came out of his apartment and began punching her.

Police identified the suspect as Jayson Gibbs, age 30. They don't believe the suspect and victim were acquainted, and don't have a motive for the alleged attack.

Two neighbors came to the woman's aid, stopping the assault. But the suspect went back into his apartment and barricaded himself, refusing to surrender to officers.

Neighbors were evacuated and SWAT teams from both West Sacramento and Davis, along with Davis's hostage negotiation team, all responded. Gibbs surrendered and was booked into Yolo County Jail on charges of felony assault.

The victim was taken by ambulance to a hospital for treatment.

An arrest report alleged that Biggs punched the woman in the face multiple times while she was down, lying in the street.

Fire log

Emergency dispatchers received a call that a vehicle had gone into a building at the corner of Maple Street and Rice Avenue last Wednesday.

No one was in the building, and the occupants of the vehicle fled the scene, reports the West Sacramento Fire Department. Police investigated and the vehicle was removed.

On January 4, three units from West Sacramento helped respond to a three-alarm fire in Woodland. An older Victorian home (converted to four apartments) had caught fire. The burning was occurring within the home's walls. Firefighters "opened up" various walls, ceilings and floors on the first and second floor to get at the fire.

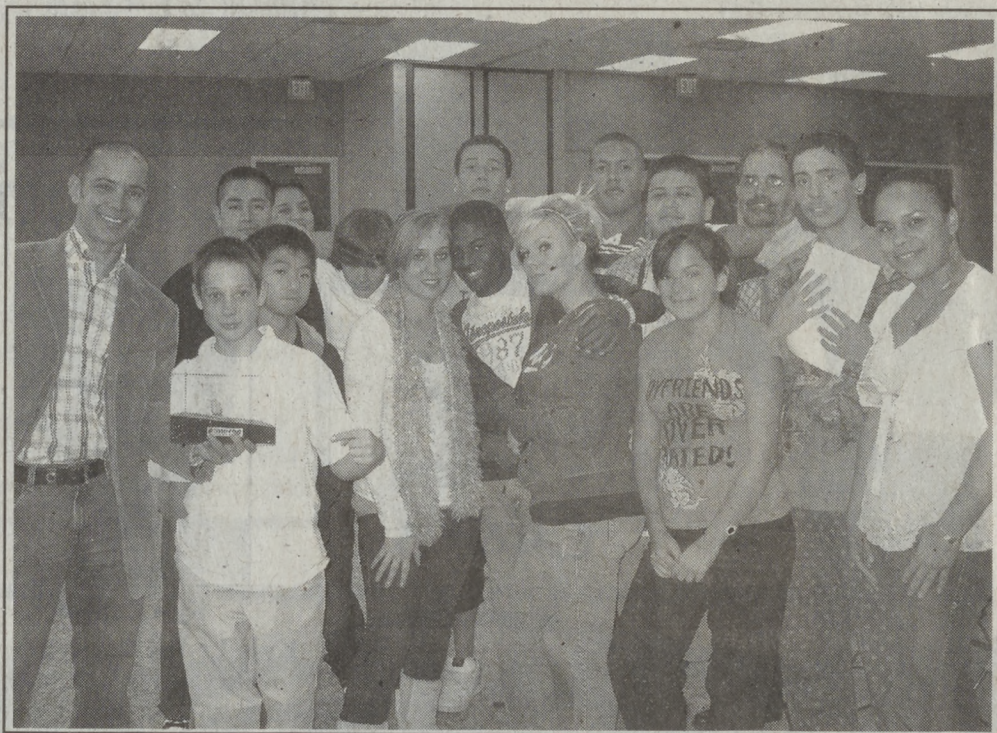

Air ambulance

An "air ambulance" from the Calstar company paid a call on Massie Court in Southport on January 4 to provide safety training for West Sacramento firefighters. During the visit, the emergency responders talked about emergency procedures involving the chopper, including setting up temporary landing zones, caring for patients, and take-offs. All three shifts of city firefighters received training.

For supporting youth

The Capital Region Coalition of "e:merge," a regional youth advocacy project of the Youth Development Network, recently presented a "Pillar of Promise" award to the City of West Sacramento, in recognition of its support for the West Sacramento Youth Resource Coalition and the Sactown Heroes program.

Pictured, members of the Sactown Heroes honor Mayor Christopher Cabaldon (left) and the City of West Sacramento for "excellence in commitment to distinct features of the Capital Region Compact for Children and Youth—caring adults, safe places, healthy start, effective education and community involvement." A lease for Agrium and an Indian museum progress report are on local agendas this week

The local city council, school board and port commission will all meet this week.

The commission governing the Port of West Sacramento will meet at 5 p.m. at city hall (1110 West Capitol Avenue) on Wednesday. The commission will consider supporting a Sacramento County Sheriff's Department application to a federal program for a patrol boat to help monitor Delta waterways including those at the entrance to the Port of West Sacramento's deep water channel.

The commission will also consider a 20-year lease of 5.5 acres along the waterfront to the Agrium fertilizer company, which handles anhydrous ammonia at its large Channel Drive facility. The plant has leased the property for a wharf since 1975, and the current lease is due to expire in 2012.

Members of the Sacramento-Yolo Port District Commission are chairman Mike McGowan of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors, Christopher Cabaldon (mayor of West Sacramento), West Sacramento city council members Mark Johannessen and Oscar Villegas, and former councilman Wes Beers.

The West Sacramento City Council will meet in public session at city hall at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The main item on the agenda is an update from the state parks department on the progress of the planned California Indian Heritage Center. The center is proposed for a 43-acre site on the city's northeastern riverfront, near the Rivers subdivision and the Washington neighborhood. Representatives from the state parks department will ask council members to comment on the "preferred alternative" design for the project.

West Sacramento's school board will meet at 6 p.m. on Thursday at city hall, 1110 West Capitol Avenue.

A number of items are on the agenda. During the evening, the board plans to honor this year's football team from River City High School (which made a playoff run), discuss the criteria for evaluation of the district superintendent, receive an update on the board president's four initiatives, and receive an update concerning last Saturday's "town hall" meeting at River City High School to discuss the initiatives and priorities suggested by the public.

Wolk & Yamada on the budget:

Senate Pro Tem Darrell Steinberg (D-Sacramento) announced Thursday he has selected Senator Lois Wolk (D-Davis) to chair a newly-consolidated Senate committee tasked with restructuring the relationship between state and local governments and reforming the budget process.

In his inaugural address, Governor Jerry Brown called the current division of responsibility and finance authority between state and local government "complex, confusing and inefficient." "My goal is to achieve greater accountability and reduce the historic shifting of responsibility back and forth from one level of government to another," Brown said Monday.

"I am looking forward to this great challenge," said Senator Wolk, in a press release. "Those of us in the Legislature who served in local government know especially well that local governments are in a better position to understand the priorities of their communities. Bringing government closer to the people, as the Governor promised in his campaign, makes sense in many ways, not just as a linchpin to balancing the state budget, but to encourage innovation, reward efficiency, and improve results. Our effort will be just as focused on improving the end product as it is balancing the bottom line."

Wolk reacted to Brown's budget proposal this week — which combines tax extensions with cuts to most state expenditures except K-12 education — by calling it "tough" and "honest."

"Much work still needs to be done, (but) it is important to keep in mind that the status quo is not an acceptable alternative," she said in a press statement.

The region's Assemblymember, fellow Democrat Mariko Yamada, issued her own reaction to Brown's budget. She credited Brown with "facing these issues honestly," but added:

"I continue to be concerned about the deep cuts to social welfare programs that provide the safety net for people suffering job loss, disabilities, and poor health through no fault of their own, especially our children and the elderly."

D.A. reverses: no fourth trial for the Galvans

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

After three hung juries and protests from some community groups, the Yolo County District Attorney last week announced he will not seek a fourth trial against the Galvan Brothers.

Ernesto and Fermin Galvan faced charges after a fight with police in June, 2005, when they were approached by an officer on Riverbank Road. Ernesto Galvan suffered severe head injuries after officers used their batons (Tasers) and "take-down" techniques were also deployed.

Ernesto Galvan was charged with felony resisting arrest by threats and violence, and misdemeanor battery on a police officer. Fermin Galvan was charged with misdemeanor arrest.

The first two trials produced 11-1 votes on guilt on most charges, and the third trial was also a "hung jury." Following that trial, District Attorney Reisig said he would pursue a fourth trial in an attempt to get the needed unanimous vote from a jury to convict.

But his office released a statement last week that said, in part:

"We determined there is sufficient evidence to establish proof of each defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt; 27 of the 36 jurors who have examined the evidence have agreed with us that there is proof beyond a reasonable doubt as to most counts; and that officers acted within the confines of permissible use of force based on the circumstances and the defendants' actions.

"However," continued the D.A., "our analysis convinces us that there is a decreasing likelihood of obtaining a unanimous verdict of 12 members of the community in this matter. Therefore, it is our intent to seek a dismissal of all charges and to not proceed to a fourth trial."

Activist Steven Payan released a statement in defense of the brothers, questioning why District Attorney Reisig had "failed to listen to all three county juries," and "failed to thoroughly investigate whether there was any wrongdoing on the part of the police officers as to the accusations of the brutal beating that Ernesto Galvan suffered."

Payan was part of a coalition of protesters including members of LULAC, a coalition of Latin-American citizens.

Here are a few of my favorite quotes

People I meet and spend time with, or people I just meet in passing often remind me of old quotes, poems and sayings I've heard or read over the years, and although I'm afraid I can't remember all of the authors, here are a few examples:

I was talking to the shyest person I know and was reminded of the Anais Nin quote that goes, "And then the day came when the risk to remain tight in the bud was more painful than the risk it took to blossom."

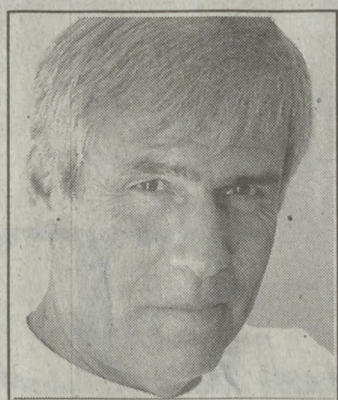

I was talking to most jealous person I know and was reminded that, "He who binds to himself a joy doth the winged life destroy, but he who embraces the joy as it flies, lives in eternity's sunrise."

I have a relative who is endlessly trying to make sense out of the life he has lived and I recently wondered if it would help if he knew that, "Maybe all one can do in this life is hope to end up with the right regrets."

There is a local public official who every time he opens his self-serving mouth reminds me of what Camus once said about politics: "Politics and the fate of men are shaped by men without ideals or nobility. Those who possess nobility are not in politics."

A very nice, bright young man who graduated from high school with my daughter, who received poor grades while he was there and truly hated school, often reminded me that all too often during our school years, "The hours that mattered most, in terms of passion, high stakes, daydreams and ideas of justice; all those were times sneaked in, unlicensed, and unpermitted."

Too many people nowadays seem to surround themselves with like-thinking people by the time they're 30 or so and then call it a life, failing to realize that, "Only that day dawns to which we are awake."

I have come to admire those who have no desire to work themselves into the grave as they seem to understand that, "It is normal to give part of your life so as not to lose it entirely. Six to eight hours a day so as not to die of hunger. And then everything else is profit to those who know how to profit from it."

While strolling down a Southern California beach many years ago I came across an absolutely gorgeous lady soaking up the sun and was reminded that, "It is not a bad thing that young men, in a young land, proclaim their attachment to those few perishable and essential qualities which provide meaning to life; the sea, the sun, and a beautiful woman in the light."

The unhappiest person I know (mostly because she doesn't have enough money to live the life she always wanted) should have met Martha Washington, who once said, "The greatest part of our happiness depends on our disposition, not our circumstances."

While trying to have a rational conversation with an employee of the Department of Motor Vehicles a few years back I was reminded that, "We grossly misjudge the distance between the cushioned seat and the padded cell."

I know a woman whom everyone loves and it's simply because she understands better than anyone I know that, "Humility is the foundation of all virtues."

My daughter knows a young couple who are currently separated by war who have come to understand that, "Those who love and are separated can live in suffering, but it is not despair; they at least know that love exists."

When the new Congress gathers every couple of years I am always reminded that, "There is this strange expectation in American society that once a problem is defined, no matter how poorly, and understood by a small number of people who have some relation to the problem, then there is no longer a problem."

When I meet someone who can't get their head around the fact that mean-spirited fools seem to live forever while the best amongst us often die young, I am reminded of something that Hemingway once wrote; "The world breaks those who inhabit it and afterward many are strong at the broken places. But those that will not break it kills. It kills the very good and the very gentle and the very brave impartially. If you are none of these you can be sure it will kill you, too, but there will be no special hurry."

A longtime friend described in some detail her latest fight with her husband and I was reminded that for some couples, "It remains to choose the most aesthetic suicide; marriage and the forty-hour week, or a revolver."

When people gather to yell and scream about how gay people are trying to destroy the institution of marriage and conveniently ignore the fact that heterosexuals have been very busy doing a really good job of that for

'Those who profess to freedom, yet deprecate agitation, are men who want crops without plowing, rain without thunder and lightning, and the ocean without the awful roar of its mighty waves.'

-- FREDERICK DOUGLASS

centuries, I am always reminded of the little button a woman was wearing on her sweater at a gay-rights rally that simply said, "My sexual preference is often."

When I hear an acquaintance of mine go on endlessly about his economic success while never mentioning the fact that his father handed him the family business on a platter I am reminded that, "Some people are born on third base and go through life thinking they hit a triple."

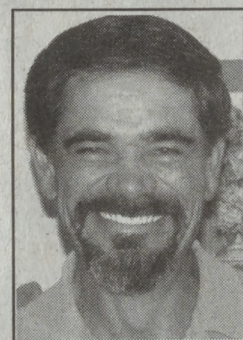

Years ago, someone I got stuck sitting next to at a dinner party harangued me for over 15 minutes about how my generation had no respect for freedom and democracy because of all the anti-Vietnam War demonstrations that occurred during the 1960's and 1970's, and I couldn't help remembering the following Frederick Douglass quote: "Those who profess to freedom, yet deprecate agitation, are men who want crops without plowing, rain without thunder and lightning, and the ocean without the awful roar of its mighty waves."

I know a very happily married elderly couple who are always lovingly arguing over their different memories and interpretations of events from years gone by and when they do so I often think of an old song lyric that goes, "We may not recall all of the words, but we will never forget the melody."

I have a friend who is much too timid and I always want to tell her that, "Life, the real living of it, belongs to those who are willing to risk."

And finally, I have a grandchild whom I cannot be around without laughing and when I am with him I am always reminded of that wonderful old W.H. Auden quote that goes, "Among those whom I like, I can find no common denominator, but among those whom I love, I can; all of them make me laugh."

Protective Pecans (NAPS)—Eating a handful of pecans each day may play a role in protecting the nervous system, according to a new study. Research from the University of Massachusetts suggests that adding pecans to your diet may help keep nerve cells functioning well as you age.

Recent research revealed that adding pecans to your diet may help protect your nervous system.

The study was published in the journal Current Topics in Nutraceutical Research. "Antioxidants like those found in pecans help protect against cell damage," said lead researcher Thomas B. Shea, Ph.D. "These findings suggest eating pecans on a regular basis may provide significant nutritional benefits that may provide a protective effect for the nervous system." Pecans are the most antioxidant-rich tree nut and are among the 15 foods that contain the highest antioxidant capacity, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"Buried" (R) — Hands up: Who wants to see Ryan Reynolds buried alive? Yeah, me too. Well, in "Buried" we get our wish. Reynolds stars as Paul Conroy, a truck driver who wakes up to find himself buried in a coffin under 6 feet of earth with nothing but a cell phone that's running out of juice, a lighter and about 90 minutes of oxygen. With time running out on him, Conroy needs to piece together enough clues to determine his location so he can call for help (that is, if the cell phone doesn't go dead first).

Demonstrating an almost Hitchcockian finesse, director Rodrigo Cortes does a remarkable job not only in finding impressive ways of shooting in such a confined space, but in keeping the dramatic tension taut as piano wire throughout the entire film. "Buried" is definitely worth a look.

"Dark Skies: The Declassified Complete Series" (Unrated) — "Dark Skies" is one of those great, short-lived series that nobody watched, but should have. Set in the 1960s, the show tells the tale of a young couple (Eric Close, Megan Ward) who are drawn into a shadowy conspiracy involving a secret war against an alien invasion. What made "Dark Skies" such brilliant television was its approach to telling an alternative history, using real people like The Beatles, Howard Hughes, Bobby Kennedy, Charles Manson and other historical figures as players in this vast sub rosa struggle for humanity's survival.

SUCH A DEAL!

"Sean Connery 007 Collection Volume 1" (PG) — This six-disc set includes the two-disc ultimate editions of "Dr. No," "From Russia With Love" and "Goldfinger" — a pretty great deal for less than 20 bucks, if you don't already own the films.

DOG OF THE WEEK

"Death Race 2" (Unrated) — How is it even possible to screw up a "Death Race" movie? All you need are a bunch of cars tricked out with missile launchers and machine guns, hot chicks, ridiculously cool destruction to explosion stunts and a few zippy one-liners. Well, director Roel Reiné (yeah, I never heard of him either) has managed to make this direct-to-DVD production a complete snooze-fest.

Ryan Reynolds in "Buried"

The stunts are weak, the chicks are barely office pretty and worst of all, he cast Danny Trejo, one of the most badass actors on the planet, as a wise-cracking mechanic. Save your money and avoid this abomination.

The Horns of Ruin
by Tim Akers
(Pyr, $16)

Reviewed by Ealish Waddell

Everyone in the Fraterdom knows the tale of the three brother gods, Morgan, Amon and Alexander, who founded the realm and its capital, the city of Ash. But that was long ago. Now Morgan is dead, murdered at the hand of his devious brother Amon. Amon, too, is gone, executed for his crime by Alexander. Alexander alone remains to reign as godking over Ash.

Over the centuries, the cults of the three gods have mirrored their fates. The Alexians rule Ash as healers and peacekeepers. The Amonites, a clan of scholars and builders of machines, are the only ones who understand how the ancient city runs, so they are kept alive but imprisoned. And the Morganites are gradually fading away, as the generations pass and ever fewer recruits are dedicated to the service of the dead champion.

Eva is the last paladin of the cult of Morgan. Abandoned at its fortress as a child, it is the only home she remembers and the only family she has ever known. So when the Morganite patriarch is kidnapped, Eva makes it both her professional and personal business to track down the culprit. She suspects the Amonites are reviving their ancient feud, but for what reason? And who are the bizarre masked machine-men who keep getting in her way?

As more of her fellow Morganites turn up brutally murdered and the very survival of the cult comes under attack, Eva will have to call on all the valor of her warrior god to survive the cruel machinations of a conspiracy far greater and older than she ever imagined.

A lot happens very quickly in Eva's story, and it takes some work to follow it all, but the richness of the world of Ash is so rewarding that readers will have a great time doing so. An original and unusual blend of steampunk, city noir and sword-and-sorcery, "The Horns of Ruin" is a recommended read for sci-fi and fantasy fans.

Almond-Crusted Tilapia

Appealingly mild and lean, tilapia still has plenty of heart-healthy omega-3 fats. (Bonus: It is one of the least mercury-laden fish, and is also low in sodium.) Green beans and mushrooms deliver fiber and potassium, while crunchy almonds boost antioxidants.

- 2 lemons
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
- 4 (6 ounces each) tilapia fillets
- 1/4 cup sliced natural almonds

- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 bag (12-ounce) trimmed fresh green beans
- 1 package (10-ounce) sliced white mushrooms
- 2 tablespoons water

1. Preheat oven to 425 degrees. From 1 lemon, grate 1 teaspoon peel and squeeze 3 tablespoons juice; cut second lemon into wedges. In cup, mix lemon peel and 1 tablespoon juice, 1 tablespoon oil, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper.

2. Spray 13-by-9-inch glass baking dish with nonstick spray; place tilapia, dark side down, in dish. Drizzle tilapia with lemon mixture; top with almonds, pressing them on. Bake 15 minutes or until tilapia turns opaque.

Snack Happy!

According to a United States Department of Agriculture study, after-school snacks provide about one-third of children's calories. Because children have smaller stomachs, they need the energy and nutrients provided by these mini-meals. However, when high-fat, high-sugar snack foods are combined with screen time — either TV or computer — instead of active play time, children are likely to gain more weight than they should for optimum health. Providing your child with nutritious snacks teaches them how to make good choices for a happier, healthier future.

Choosing food implies having power. Refusing to eat certain foods or demanding to eat others is one way that children practice their growing independence. They test values and decide which ones to reject, modify and adopt. Consequently, doing what everyone else is doing may become more-tempting than doing what parents have taught.

The key for parents and caregivers is to strike a balance between providing good nutrition and letting children make independent decisions. One way to do this is by offering a wide variety of healthy foods. Provide food choices that offer a range of taste experiences, such as crunchy, soft, chewy, smooth, hot, cold, sweet, sour, bland, and spicy.

A child's favorite foods should never be used as a reward for good behavior, or withheld as punishment for bad behavior. Focus on physical activity as well as food. Walking, riding bikes or playing together is a great way to build family communication. If your child shows a tendency toward being overweight, encourage more physical activity and less screen time at the television or computer.

Distinguish between food facts and myths. Current research does not support claims that sugar and food colors are linked to hyperactivity, criminal behavior or increased anxiety. However, meal-skipping, especially breakfast, has been shown to harm

Crime prevention tips from the Yolo County District Attorney's Office

The General Criminal unit recommends the following tips to help keep you safe:

- 1) Do not leave your purse, wallet, check-book, cell phone, laptop or other valuables in your car — even if it's parked in your driveway.
- 2) Know what you are drinking at a party — Watch as your drink is made and don't leave it unattended.
- 3) Before you post pictures or other personal information of yourself on social networking sites, remember that many people such as future employers or strangers may see it.
- 4) If you own a business, check your book-keeping and finances regularly to make sure you know where your money is.
- 5) When you go on vacation, make absolutely sure you know that the person taking care of your home is trustworthy and won't have people over you don't know.
